

Abstract of the Disclosure

A memory device including a single transistor having functions of RAM and ROM and methods for operating and manufacturing the same are provided. The memory device includes a single transistor formed on a substrate. The transistor may be a memory transistor having a gate with a nonvolatile memory element, or the nonvolatile memory element is provided between the transistor and the substrate.